STRONG PAPER.

We know that the paper which was read by the Rev. John M. Mulcahy on Tuesday evening before the Arlington Improvement association, will be of interest to our town's people and so it is that we publish it in full in this issue. Mr. Mulcahy discusses his subject, "Suggestions Relative to the Administration of Town Affairs," in a manly, able way. We trust that every man and woman in Arlington will read it. In our next issue we shall have something to say of the public meetings of all our official boards in session, to which Mr. Mulcahy calls earnest and timely attention. But read his excellent paper.

The subject for discussion, "Suggestions relative to the administration of town affairs," seems on reflection to be a most comprehensive one, and might include any topic for duties from the Selectmen to the suggestion of hints to the fence viewer. In the brief time at my disposal since I promised to put together a few thoughts bearing on this subject, I have been able only to jot down a few reflections that might possibly lead up to a general discussion of what is considered by all citizens a most practical and timely subject.

What are town affairs? The town is a political and corporate body created by the legislature. Its rights, duties and liabilities are defined by law, and it is responsible for any act or omission in violation of the law to the person injured or to the state. It can be fined in the same manner as an individual. By the affairs of the town we mean its government and the administration of the same, conducted by its officers with a view to obtain the results for which it exists, viz: the general good of the whole community which goes to make up the town.

The town is a corporate body, legally organized and recognized as such. Like any corporation, it has its officers or boards of officials, elected or appointed to perform certain duties.

It might seem superfluous to say that in the selection of town officials, those only should be considered who are men, possessing knowledge, of undoubted honesty, and absolutely fearless of unfair and party criticism; men who understand the needs and wants of the people of the town; who are competent to comprehend these needs and wants and supply them; in a word, who understand the business of the town, or at least have sufficient talent to learn the same in a short time, and without difficulty to transact it. A man, whose honesty is a matter of doubt, for obvious reasons, should never be considered in making a selection. Nor should he who keeps his ear to the ground lest he might give offense to an individual or clique.

The manager of a business corporation looks for the most competent assistants to do his work, and he does not stop to inquire, before making his selection, whether or not the available parties agree with himself in politics or theology. With him the only question to be weighed is, "will they do my work well?" No corporation, no town can afford to engage in its service one, whose only claim for engagement is, that he is a "good fellow", or is in need of the compensation of the office to round out a slender income.

In national, state and city campaigns we have heard of candidates for positions of trust whose chief qualification was that they possessed a "barrel," and were prepared to open it. Has not a similar condition prevailed in town elections?

In our own brief experience in this town, we have known candidates for office who were prepared to accede to the demands of pretended vote furnishers.

Again, petty jealousies, an appeal to class or race distinctions, the machinations of a few secret-service agents are sometime employed to prevent the selection of the right man for the right place. By way of digression I may say that I noticed a manoeuvre of this kind right here in our own association, that prevented the selection as presiding officer, not long ago, of a member to whom it was due by the right of custom and the usual order of promotion.

When public offices of trust and responsibility are to be filled, the fact that we not infrequently witness a scramble of incapable and unworthy candidates aspiring to these positions is a sad travesty on the boasted education of this enlightened age. What ought to be expected from the selectmen and other boards of government in the administration of town affairs? The same care, good judgment and sense of responsibility that is exhibited in conducting their own private business. The absence of any of these requisites is inexcusable and not to be tolerated. The board of selectmen, in whom is vested the authority to conduct the business of the town, should recognize the right of all citizens to scrutinize their every public act, to criticize their doings favorably or unfavorably as freely as circumstances will warrant, and to this end, the public should be afforded an opportunity to know their doings in detail by having provided for the public an audience room sufficiently large to witness the acts of the board that is conducting the business of the town. On matters in which the interests of the community financially, morally or otherwise are involved, the citizens at large have a right to know the attitude of each and every member of the board. This, it appears, is absolutely necessary to insure protection against the secret machinations of bosses and cliques. It is a well known fact that all the infamous and scandalous doings of governing bodies in the government of cities, towns and communities have been perpetrated behind closed doors. No man will dare to attempt a nefarious deed, if he is compelled to act above board, openly and before the eyes of the public. A town official occupies a position of trust; he is not there for personal gain either financially or politically; he has no authority to use his office to reward his personal friends; his personal feelings towards any or several citizens should have no influence on his actions in public matters. Unfortunately we sometimes hear charges of a contrary course of public action, while we rarely hear a charge of absolute dishonesty at least in town government. The idea, public official acts entirely oblivious of an anticipated or desired re-election. Are all our officials ideal in this respect? It has been publicly asserted by competent and responsible authorities that even the highest office in our country, the Presidency of the United States, has not been free from the charge, that the first half of a four years' term of office has been spent in rewarding political adherents and followers, and the second half in carrying out plans to secure a re-election.

As a panacea for this evil it has been suggested that a six-year term together with ineligibility of re-election be substituted for the present arrangement. The evil alluded to, in the opinion of many thinking men, permeates to a greater or less extent our whole system of government from the presidency down. In the transaction of public business the greatest care is necessary. Care in calling meetings, that it be done in a legal manner; care in keeping the records of meetings by the secretary of the meeting.

I have a case in mind. Two members of a board of three held a meeting on the sidewalk of one of our streets. Its act or acts were related to the secretary afterwards, and today, the doings of that meeting of the board are on record as the motion of the third member, who was not present at this curbstome meeting, and adopted as the action of the full board. Such absolute carelessness, to use a mild term, permitting a chance for gross mistakes in records on account of the lack of comprehension on the part of the secretary, or defective information furnished to him, might be easily followed by litigation most expensive to the town, the result of downright falsification in town records.

The different boards of town government ought to work in harmony, to this end that the whole community may obtain the benefit which will be the result of their joint harmonious action. One board may be jealous of another, lest it exceed the limits of its power, or interfere with the prerogatives of another, or one board may be crowded by another to the advantage of the latter. All joint action, other than harmonious, is calculated to conduce to failure ure to gain the end for which they exist; viz: the maximum of results with the minimum of labor and expense.

In conclusion permit me to say, that my position obliges me to have frequent communication with town officials, and from the present boards I received the most courteous treatment, which, I believe, is given to every citizen who is obliged to approach them on matters of business.

WHAT ARLINGTON NEEDS.

What Arlington needs, and what her citizens have a right to demand is a course of free lectures during the coming winter months, upon subjects of a practical nature. Club life as we have written, is an excellent arrangement within certain limits, and yet, however far reaching such a life may become, it can never reach the masses. That education which counts the most, must get out into the highways and compel them to come in. Our work of benevolence too frequently takes in those who have the least need of it. Our social and intellectual life becomes too frequently classish—it takes in only "our set," which will of necessity constitute only the comparatively few. There should be in every community some place for the instruction of the whole; an arrangement by which there should be no dividing lines, and particularly should this be for the winter months. In this respect the Robbins library fills the bill—for it is absolutely free to all who will accept what it has to give. Now arrange for a course of free lectures upon subjects of every day interest, then will the public have at hand entertainment whereby and wherein all can meet on one common level. Suppose an evening's talk was to be given on how to make good bread, or how to properly cook a steak, or how to make a good cup of coffee, that hour would surely not be lost. Then again suppose an hour should be devoted to the question as to how the long winter evenings may be pleasantly and profitably spent at home. These and a thousand other questions concerning the home might be so discussed, as to interest all grades of social and intellectual life. In our haste to plan for the popular entertainment which will draw those of our kind, we forget, or at any rate leave out of our reckoning, the men and women who toil on day after day, week in and week out, without even a thought of providing for their amusement and instruction. What Arlington needs to do, is to provide for all Arlington, by way of free, public entertainments; entertainments that shall be sources of instruction and amusement to those who are outside it may be of what may be termed, the more popular social and society life of the town. To get at your man and woman, you need to dive deep and go often, that such may be brought to the surface, by that attractive force which has within itself the good of the individual.

A SOULLESS WORK.

A soulless work can have nothing of permanency in it or about it. Life can only be begotten of life. The writer for instance, may swing his pen until the crack of doom, and yet if he does not put his heart and soul into the written word, then will it all prove of no effect. No sentence will stand unless there is a man or woman behind it. A personal force in whatever department of labor, will always make a score. An intense personality will make itself felt forever more. That word will invariably catch the ear of the listener, when the listener sees behind the word the man who speaks it. But there are so many cowards in the world who do not dare assert themselves, that we have all kinds of trash in the newspaper and magazine world. There are only a few men who are willing to come out into open, and do battle for what they believe to be right. The most of us are disposed to skulk and run. We are ready to swear that someone else did it, and not I. Why not quit ourselves like men? Suppose someone does get mad clear through with us for having our say? What of it? Be a man, and show yourself in your work. Let the reader see you in every sentence you write. Emphasize every line you write with your own personality. Let the reader feel that he is in your very presence, whenever he takes in your written thought. Infuse your words with your own life, so that they may go forth in your stead, and do your own chosen work. If what you do is wanting heart and soul, then you might as well not made the attempt. To do effectively is to be; the power of an intense, overshadowing personality, is irresistible. There can be no greater slave on all God's earth, than that man who is everlastingly attempting to shape and mould his own views and opinions, so they will fit those of the man, whose praises he is forever singing. There is a delightful freedom in that manly, sensible world, where each individual acts his own part without fear or favor.

THE UNIVERSALIST CONVENTION.

The biennial session of the Universalist General Convention which has been held in Boston during the present week proved itself a gathering of the most eminent ability of that religious denomination which believes and preaches that God is love. It isn't our purpose to reproduce any considerable part of what was so ably discussed in that distinguished and we may say remarkable convention—we say remarkable, by reason of its somewhat interdenominational character—for Lyman Abbott was there, and so were Edward Everett Hale, President Eliot of Harvard College, and others outside the Universalist denomination. Through the readings of this convention we have been impressed with the fact that the religious world is today leaning towards that faith which accepts as a truth, that God is love, and that "He will finally restore the whole human family of mankind to holiness and happiness." The Rev. Dr. Gordon of the new South church in Boston, and other distinguished lights of the so-called Orthodox churches do not for an instant believe in a punishment that shall be endless. They preach that God is love, and that in his own good time, he will bring the whole human family unto himself. The greater difference between those of Universal faith and those who have hitherto believed only in a fractional salvation in this, namely: that our Universalist friends came to recognize earlier than did others, the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man. But thank God, we are all at last learning that fundamental truth. "Who shall object," asked the Rev. Dr. Gordon in Henry Ward Beecher's pulpit a little more than a year ago, "If God shall save the whole family of man?" How the later generations have lived and learned! How we have come to see things more nearly as they are. We have profoundest regard and love for those fathers and mothers who, in the years happily gone, could lay away their dear ones without a ray of hope, but at the same time how much we wish they could have lived in these later days—how much happier they would have been! How the heart of many a father and mother must have been crucified and torn assunder, bleeding at every point, inasmuch as they were compelled in many instances to give up the dearest child of all, the pet of the household, to the literal fire which was never, never to be quenched. It is with a shudder that we recall those times, and those terrible experiences of the older grown. We believe in a just retribution. We know that by a natural law, punishment must follow wrongdoing but we as firmly believe that the Father of us all, will finally gather every child of his creation, close about him. That was an abominable doctrine that we heard preached in our youth, just such a doctrine as no clergyman could publicly proclaim from the pulpit to-day, and retain his position for any time—and yet it was a doctrine largely in keeping with that earlier age. Then the cry was "justice" with little or no thought of mercy. In the family it was the "rod," while among the nations of the earth it was the "sword." Why, it is only a little more than two centuries ago, that in Christian England there were something like two hundred and twenty-five offences punishable with death. In the former days it was blood for blood, and so naturally enough one's God in the centuries gone, was of his own making. But we have fallen upon more fortunate times. We now know more both of God and man than ever before. It now is a demonstrated truth that God is love, and it is no longer heterodox to so declare it. The Rev. Mr. Shutter of Minneapolis touched the key note of all theology when he so eloquently declared in convention, assembled, that "it doth not yet appear what any of us shall be. It doth not yet appear what the least developed specimen of our race shall be. It doth not yet appear what any dwarfed and sinning soul shall be when freed from ignorance and blindness it rises to higher conditions. A blot on earth, it shall become a star in the firmament." Our Universalist friends are not alone in their conception of a loving God. Multitudes are flocking to them, happy in the thought that the Omnipotent Creator will care for his own. Governor Wolcott said on Monday evening before the convention, that "Universalism," as he believed, "was founded on the protest of a religion of love, against a theology of divine vengeance."

CLUB LIFE.

Club life organized for literary and social purposes is a wise arrangement for both men and women, provided it does not interfere with home duties. The social element in the human kind demands a more or less frequent coming together. We must meet our fellows if we would make the most of ourselves. To get our own measure we must size up against some other man. To live altogether within one's self is to become narrow and pedantic. This is just as true of the professions as it is of the individual. Take for instance that religious denomination which draws itself into its shell, having substantially no communication or relationship with other religious denominations and then see how quickly it becomes narrow and bigotted, thinking no one can be saved unless salvation shall come in its own limited way. A generous breadth of religious, political or social belief, can only come from that spirit of fraternity which takes into the account all sides of humanity. So it is that club life has come to play an important part in all professional and business life. We have an admiration for that clergyman who dares run up against the world; who has the courage to eat and drink with publicans and sinners, who, in short, does not hesitate to count himself a man among men. It is a misfortune to be able to spot the professions, through the cloth worn, and by means of what is aptly termed "shop talk." "The schoolmaster abroad" has become more unendurable to us than the tramp who doesn't know where he is going to get his dinner. Who doesn't sicken of this everlasting professional talk? Who wants to hear of the better method of explaining the inversion of the divisor or of some learned talk on the English language before breakfast? Now club life has the tendency to make men and women over anew, so that they will act very much like other men and women, in spite of their individual pursuits in life. Arlington is fortunate in having so arranged, as to meet in a large way, this social and literary demand of the hour. When we speak of club life we do not mean so much those organizations within the churches as we do that organization which takes in a representative whole. The need is to get at men and women as we find them: in the world at large. It isn't the better plan that the Unitarian should altogether associate with his brother Unitarian, or the Baptist with his brother Baptist and so on to the end of the list. Club life is a democracy where all in spite of religious and political differences touch elbows. And just here is found its greatest value. But we are always to have a care that no social or literary arrangement is to break in upon the home. We have no sympathy with that man or woman who is so devoted to any outside organization, even if it be a prayer meeting, that he or she will leave the home for an evening when the children need the presence and care of their parents. The home comes or should come first in all our reckoning, while all else is secondary.

YOU HAVE SEEN HIM.

You have, and so have all of us, seen that man in whom and to whom there was nothing save his money. Made indeed, in the image of a man, and yet who was no man at all. You find these specimens of humanity wherever you go. Happily they are greatly in the minority, but still they are found so frequently that the fact is established that worshippers of the golden calf are not all extinct up to this present writing. These men made of money, and it doesn't take a very large amount to make some of them, may always be known by the self-important air they assume. They console themselves with the thought that they mould and fashion public opinion. They verily believe they run things generally. They assume to know it all, so you can teach them nothing. They "are wiser in their own conceits than seven men who can give a reason." Well, money is a convenience and a blessing when it is made a servant, but the very moment it gets top of a man, it makes a fool of him. The man who has nothing but his money is the poorest of the poor. Money has never and never will it supply the place of brains. Many a man has made a jack of himself who without a dollar of his own, has suddenly come into possession of an inheritance. We have seen such, who could boast of a good bank account, and yet into whose head you could not shoot an idea with a seventy-four pounder.

THE PUNISHMENT OF CHILDREN.

We publish below what the World of Sunday so well says upon the above subject in a recent issue of the World's Sunday Magazine. We believe in the good common sense of every word of the article which we gladly reproduce. Here it is:

But why should children be punished at all? Surely any intelligent parent who will give the problem the careful attention that it deserves can find a way of giving to an immature and wholly dependent child all the governance and discipline that are necessary without inflicting pain—physical, mental or moral—upon it. There is always something in a child to which a successful appeal for good behavior can be made—pride, self-esteem, affection, the innate morality of innocence or something else besides fear. And the appeal to these forces wholesomely educates the child, while the appeal to fear of punishment degrades him, making a coward of him, and usually a liar also.

One trouble is that parents will not be at pains to study the characters of their children in order to learn to what sort of appeal each will respond. It is less troublesome just to thrash them or inflict some other suffering upon them. Again, much of parental government is tyranny and injustice. It is imposed not for the child's good, but for the parent's convenience; not upon any principle, but arbitrarily; not upon any grounds or reason that the child can understand, but as an autocratic fiat, against which the child rebels in his soul if he has the courage, and before which he cringes and cowers if he is morally infirm. In either case he is wronged.

The parent's right to rule is by no means absolute. The child's right to personal liberty is as positive as that of any man, though subject to certain limitations. It is the parent's right and duty to govern the child where governance is for the child's own good or where it is necessary to keep him from wrongdoing others. The wise and just parent will not rob his child of the discipline incident to self-control.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The October number of the Critic has the following paragraph concerning Nancy Hanks, the mother of Abraham Lincoln. "An interesting monograph has just been published by the Doubleday & McClure Co. on Nancy Hanks, the mother of Abraham Lincoln. The author is Mrs. Caroline Hanks Hitchcock of Cambridge, who in the course of writing the history of the Hanks family has come across undisputed proofs of the marriage of Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, which has been from time to time denied, but which she now proves with documentary evidence. The evidence is the following: "I do hereby certify that by the authority of license sent from the clerk's office of Washington Co. I have solemnized the rite of matrimony between Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, June 12th, 1806, A. D., agreeable to the rites and ceremonies of the Methodist Episcopal church. Witness my hand, REV. JESSE HEAD.

Munsey's magazine for October has an excellent likeness of Admiral Dewey and a very readable article on the Admiral's forty-four years of service in the navy as a cadet, a junior officer, a captain, and as a commodore and of his year and a half as Admiral.

The Norwich university, where Dewey received his first lessons in military life, has become illustrious by reason of the fame of its distinguished pupil, Admiral Dewey. Ground was broken on the first day of May for the new hall which is now being added to the University buildings. The hall is to be paid for by a fund of $100,000, contributed by Vermonters residing all over the Union. We naturally feel something of an interest in Norwich university, not alone from the fact that Dewey has given it a national reputation, but for this other reason that it is situated right opposite Dartmouth college, and on the other side of the Connecticut river. We do not forget when a student at Dartmouth, that the boys of the University and the Dartmouth boys more or less frequently crossed swords, and we remember with no little pride that the Dartmouth boys as frequently came out on top as did the University boys.

The leading feature of Munsey's magazine for Oct. is the article by Joseph H. Manley on the long and distinguished service of James W. Bradley who was a classmate in Bowdoin college of Hawthorne and Longfellow, and who was a member of the United States senate, with Webster, Clay and Calhoun. Mr. Bradbury is now hale and hearty at the age of 97 years, and actively interested in the Maine Historical society of which he has been president since 1873, and also interested in the affairs of Bowdoin hall of which he has been a trustee for more than forty years. The reminiscences Mr. Bradbury gives of Webster, Clay, Calhoun and other lights of the national senate in his time are particularly readable and his remembrances of Longfellow, Hawthorne and other writers of his day add to the interest of the article so well written by Mr. Manley.

The question, "Where shall Admiral Dewey be seated at all social and state dinner parties?" is just now becoming of paramount importance in Washington. Why not have the question settled by arbitration?

Thursday, Nov. 30 is the day appointed by President McKinley for the national annual Thanksgiving and praise. The President's proclamation reads in a grateful way.

ARLINGTON NEWS.

Mr. John C. Waage certainly ought to feel proud of the job he has just done on "The Florence," Mr. Geo. D. Moore's model apartment house. The colors are light and green, with white trimmings. The work is of the same high order as is all Mr. Waage's painting.

The South African war is becoming formidable.

Mr. E. R. Henderson of Green street, manager of Field's orchestra, has engaged the Town hall for Saturday evening assemblies. Admission for ladies 15 cents, gentlemen 35 cents. Dancing from 8 to 11.30 o'clock. These dances will prove a pleasant recreation for the young people.

William S. Horan of Cambridge and Josephine G. Sweeney of Park street, Arlington were married on Wednesday evening at the parochial residence, Medford street by Rev. A. G. Fitzgerald. The bridesmaid was Nellie T. Sweeney, and best man was Jeremiah Horan.

Bay State L.O.L., 418, will hold their annual ball in Town hall, Wednesday evening, Dec. 6. Preparations are well under way and a good time is expected.

Mr. J. H. Ford has been offered and has accepted a position as tuner in the N. E. Piano Co's factory. Mr. Ford is an expert in his profession.

After a long and painful illness Miss A. L. Cleveland of Boston, a sister of Mrs. F. H. Gray of Bacon st. and known to a large number of Arlington people, passed away at her home on Tuesday evening. Loving friends and relatives did everything in their power to alleviate her sufferings. The funeral was held at her late residence, 11 Havenland street, and the remains were interred in Mt. Pleasant cemetery. The floral display told how lovingly she was held in the hearts of those near and dear to her. Rev. Mr. Atkinson of the Church of the Ascension, officiated.

William T. Wood & Co. are making three large shipments of ice tools to Norway. The above company have ice ploughs that will go through the thickest ice of those northern regions.

The "at home" given by the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Fister on Wednesday evening, was largely attended, as was the first, by the many friends of the pastor and his estimable wife. The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Fister have now their domestic boat well launched upon the sea of life, so that with sails well set to favoring winds they have reason to expect a prosperous and enjoyable voyage. May they always see the rainbow in the waters beneath them and in the skies above them.

We had a pleasant interview the other morning with Mr. J. H. Frizelle at his pleasant home in East Lexington. Mr. Frizelle is an expert machinist and manufacturer of hair pickers. His business relations extend to many of the larger cities of the country. He is an agreeable man to meet.

The barn of Frank Bowman which was burned on Wednesday was insured in the Traders' and Mechanics' Insurance Co. of Lowell and in the Middlesex of Concord. The insurance of $2000 in both companies was placed by George Y. Wellington & Son.

The Historical society will meet on Tuesday evening of next week in Pleasant hall. Mr. George Y. Wellington will read a paper for discussion on the subject, "What should be the aim, object and work of this society?"

Mr. Charles Whytal has been confined at his home with a severe malarial attack.

Mr. Henry W. Bullard of 29 Academy street spent Sunday with friends in Canaan, New Hampshire.

Mrs. Henry W. Woodruff of Lawrence visited Mrs. Henry W. Bullard on Wednesday.

Vesper service and organ recital on Wednesday evening, Nov. 1 (All Saint's Day) at St. John's church. Mr. Frederick N. Shackley, whose recital early in the year will be pleasantly remembered, will be the organist, and the service will be sung by the vested choir of the Church of the Assention, Boston. Professor Shackley will play "Adoratio ex Vox Angelica," Fr. Dubois; "Berceuse," Gounod; "Fiat Lux," Fr. Dubois; "The Lost Chord," Sir A. Sullivan; Romance in G, Svendsen; Finale in D, Lemmens; Offertory in C minor, Guilmant. All are cordially invited. The offering will be taken in behalf of the organ fund.

Mrs. James L. Bull will give a talk on "Social Life in Japan" in the parish house, Maple street, on Thursday evening, Nov. 9.

The ladies of St. John's parish meet every Friday afternoon in the parish house, to prepare for their fair which is to be held in the Town hall, Dec. 12.

We are glad to learn that the Rev. James Yeames, who has been confined to his bed for two weeks by painful and serious illness, is now able to sit up and daily gaining strength.

The Y.P.S.C.E. of the Congregational church have promised $100 toward the organ fund.

The High school team were again defeated by the Winchester team on Thursday afternoon by a score of 12 to 0.

The dramatic entertainment given in Grand Army hall on Wednesday evening by the Rising Sons and Daughters was an enjoyable affair.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Kimball are home from the Adirondacks.

The High School foot ball team have disbanded for the present season. The team, however, has elected Cook for its captain for the year 1900, so the team is not dead, though temporarily disbanded.

Miss Berthong is a student at Dow Academy.

Next Monday evening-Veritas lodge will have a sale in Grand Army hall for the benefit of the relief fund.

Sunday, 22 after Trinity.

Morning service and sermon at St. John's church at 10.30; evening service at 10.30.

Do not forget that Wood Brothers are right "on the move." So remember them when you are about to remove your goods to the newly purchased or rented home. Not a scratch can you find on furniture they handle.

This evening is the last opportunity for registering. Don't fail to see that your name is on the list.

Miss Florence Payne gave a delightful birthday party on Wednesday evening at her home, 74 Mystic street. Some 30 of her friends came bearing their good wishes and an opal ring of rare brilliancy and worth. Mr. Wilcox presented the gift on behalf of the friends in a graceful little speech. Miss Payne received the gift with all that modesty so becoming her sex. Refreshments were served. Miss Payne, a young lady of many personal attractions and accomplishments, is still in those bewitching teens.

ARLINGTON BOAT CLUB.

Lunch will be served to members and friends on Saturday evening, Oct. 28.

The entertainment committee has secured the following high class talent for ladies' night, Nov. 2: Miss Adah C. Hussey, contralto; Clarence B. Shirley, tenor; Frank A. Kennedy, violinist; Miss Ernestine Banks, reader; Frank O. Nash, accompanist. The programme arranged is an attractive one and ought to draw largely.

The entry blanks are posted for a handicap billiard and pool tournament. First and second prizes will be given in each event. An entrance fee of $1 will be charged for the billiard and 50c for the pool. Entrance close Nov. 4.

The bowling alleys have been refinished with Dayton polish and equipped with Dayton pins and new balls. This will make a faster game.

A team has been entered in the Amateur bowling league of Boston and vicinity. The first game will be about Nov. 10.

Entry list is now posted for two-men handicap bowling tournaments on Thanksgiving afternoon and evening. Entrance fee 25c.

We had the pleasure of listening on Sunday morning to the Rev. Mr. Knickerbocker of Auburn, Me., as he discoursed at the Universalist church. Mr. Knickerbocker has been in attendance upon the convention of his denomination during the present week in Boston. Mr. Knickerbocker took the following timely words for his text, "Speak to the earth and it shall teach thee." His sermon was largely illustrative and in keeping with the lessons of the autumn time. Mr. Knickerbocker has a shapely physique, and consequently an attractive presence; so it is that during the delivery of his sermon, he stands aside from his pulpit, that his well-proportioned form may be seen, and in this he is right. We have never doubted that these bodies of ours amounted to something, and especially so when they conform in their outline and make-up with all that is best in nature and in art. Mr. Knickerbocker has a fine, taking physique and he knows it, as he should, and he makes good use of it in his preaching. It is hardly other than a misfortune to be of inferior physical growth. The under-sized always have the worst of it. They invariably have to fight for that which is readily granted your six-footer. We know how it is with your little fellows—for haven't we suffered because we couldn't score more than five feet, seven? But we are getting a little apart from that excellent sermon preached by the Rev. Mr. Knickerbocker. The entire services at the Universalist church on Sunday morning were interesting. An excellent choir is no small feature of the worship. In listening to the reading by the Rev. Mr. Fister, we could but think of our editorial in the Enterprise of last week upon "A Clear Enunciation." Mr. Fister is easily heard and understood by all his audience, and for the reason that the spoken word falls from his lips clearly cut and defined. Nothing is lost. It is always a pleasure to listen to one who has something to say, and who says it in an intelligent way. The Rev. Mr. Fister does all this.

Mr. Charles Whytal has been confined at his home with a severe malarial attack.

Mr. Henry W. Bullard of 29 Academy street spent Sunday with friends in Canaan, New Hampshire.

Mrs. Henry W. Woodruff of Lawrence visited Mrs. Henry W. Bullard on Wednesday.

The High school team were again defeated by the Winchester team on Thursday afternoon by a score of 12 to 0.

The dramatic entertainment given in Grand Army hall on Wednesday even-

Mr. A. Bowman, the tailor, has bought out his partner, so from now on the sign will read "A. Bowman."

Wherever one goes about town, he hears the rattling of Peirce, Winn & Co's coal as it makes its way into neighboring bins.

WOMEN'S CLUB NOTES.

It was with great regret that the board of directors of the Arlington Woman's club learned, during the summer that our president, Miss Robbins, was to be absent from Arlington for a year and hence could not serve us. As there seemed to be nothing else to do we were forced to accept her resignation and to look about towards filling the vacancy. It is with great pleasure we can announce that Miss Annie Stevens has consented to serve us in that capacity and we now look forward with renewed confidence to the new year.

One other change has occurred in the board owing to the election of Miss Emily Tolman as first vice-president. A vacancy was caused which was filled by the board calling Mrs. Arthur A. Lawson to it.

The first regular meeting of the club will occur Thursday, Nov. 2, at 2.45 in G.A.R. hall. Miss Florence Howe Hall is to speak on the "Cardinal Points of Good Manners." It is hoped there will be a full attendance and that the women of Arlington will support the club in the future as cordially as they have hitherto in the past.

As the hour of one o'clock drew near Wednesday the unexpected happened. The all-powerful fire whistle started on its duty of signaling the department that a fire was raging in the lower end of the town by rounding out box 23. A quick response of the various apparatus was noticeable, and the firemen realized that for the first time in a long while they had a fire to fight and they fought it with a will.

This alarm brought out Hose 4, and we are sure the lower end of the town has an excellent company of firefighters. The fire was in the barn and slaughter house of Mr. Frank Bowman on Broadway opposite St. Paul's cemetery, and was entirely consumed, owing in a large measure to the inadequacy of the water pressure, the stream from the butts going scarcely to the eaves when water was first put through the hose. Mr. Bowman could not estimate his loss there being several hundred calf skins in the barn burned, these being a total loss.

A radical change had been made in the buildings during the spring in compliance with the laws of the board of health. The carriage and wagons were safely removed.

Mrs. Bowman and her children were the only persons upon the premises, the men folks all being away on business, and as soon as she saw the flames she had the alarm sounded, and then tried the garden hose with no effect. She has no idea how the fire started. The loss will foot up $3000 with only $2000 insurance.

Yesterday morning the fire broke out again and the department was called out again. This time a clean job was made by tearing down the remainder of the standing burned building.

The dancing class in Pleasant hall began its winter term on Friday afternoon under the instruction of Miss Lyon. We are glad to make the announcement for we believe that dancing and the graceful movements belonging thereto, should at the earliest practical moment make up a part of the education of the children. And so it was that a few weeks ago we wrote upon this subject, saying that the city of Chicago had introduced dancing into its public school system, and we called the attention of our school board to the matter. It happened a day or two after the publication of our article, we met Mr. Walter A. Robinson, a member of the school board upon the street, when we called his attention to the subject, but we found him so utterly opposed to dancing, and especially in our public schools, that we haven't had the courage to interview other members of the board. We readily acknowledge, however, that in this we have not treated fairly the other eight members of our board of education for it is only reasonable to suppose that Mr. Robinson is not the full board.

Mr. J. W. Ronco has returned from his two weeks' hunting and fishing in Maine. Mr. Ronco shot his two deer as allowed by law, and bagged many partridges, and caught strings of fish that would be difficult to count. In spite of the temperate beverages that Mr. Ronco drank during his outing, he in some mysterious way was plunged from his boat into the waters—but fortunately he came promptly to the surface, and so happily survives to tell the story of his hunting and fishing trip "away down East."

It is generally thought by our Protestant friends the country through, and so declared, that the Roman Catholic church is altogether an exclusive and seclusive body. And yet we happen to know where St. Malachy's church in Arlington has reached over into some of Arlington's Protestant churches and aided them without the asking by money contributions in their enterprises. We can but wonder if the Protestant churches here in Arlington have ever done as much for St. Malachy's church. "Ye shall know them by their fruits."

Caterer Hardy is more than busy. He furnished ten suppers to as many parties on Thursday evening.

The Hospital Aid society gave a progressive whist party on Thursday evening in Town hall. There were 35 tables. First ladies' prize Miss Mary Dacey, second Theresa O'Neil; first gentlemen's prize Thomas F. Welch, second Peter O'Neil. Dancing followed from 10 to 1. A most enjoyable time all round.

Dr. Andrew F. Reed, one of the most efficient members of our school board, has resigned his position on the committee of school books and school supplies, by reason of dissatisfaction that he has with the business methods of that committee. We shall have more to say of this matter in a near issue of the Enterprise. Of this much, however, we are sure at this present writing, namely: that it is a personal loss to the town of Arlington that Dr. Reed should have resigned from so important a committee. But more anon.

TRADERS' ASS'N.

A business meeting of the Arlington Traders' association was held on Tuesday evening in Knights of Columbus hall. The meeting was not as fully represented as it would have been had the members earlier received notice. President Hardy called the meeting to order. In the absence of the secretary, Mr. Stickney, T. J. Robinson was chosen secretary pro-tem. At a previous meeting by-laws had been adopted, so that upon reading a new set of by-laws more comprehensive in their scope, the question again arose whether or not they could be acted upon, so long as another set of by-laws had been previously approved and accepted. It was concluded however, that so long as the association had not as yet a legal organized existence, the former by-laws could be annulled and the new set taken up. This was accordingly done and, the by-laws as read by Secretary Robinson with slight amendments were adopted. The following committee was appointed to arrange for the entertainment to be held on the 14th of November by the association: Messrs. T. J. Robinson, C. A. Cushing and C. H. Stevens. It is already understood that Mr. Dawse, editor of the Traders' Magazine, will be present at the entertainment and address the meeting. The members are arranging for an interesting day. No other business coming before the association an adjournment was voted.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

The Arlington Heights Improvement Association met in Union Hall on Monday evening. President B. G. Jones called the meeting to order, after which Mr. Freethy, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were accepted and approved. There were some forty members of the association present. The Arlington Heights Improvement Association is the organization of a body of men who mean business. Its members not only advise and suggest, but they take off their coats and go to work. Much of the rapid growth of the Heights, is due to this Association. Its evening on Monday was entirely devoted to business. A report of the Executive Committee concerning a proposed conference with the school board, relating to the walk leading up to the Locke school house, was accepted and filed. A letter received from the chairman of the building committee was read, wherein it was stated that the walk had been substantially completed before the request for a conference had been received; it was also stated that the walk had been laid out by experts, and in the lay-out, the convenience and safety of the children had been considered. The School Board while it regrets that all are not satisfied with the walk, is satisfied that the majority has no unfavorable criticism to offer on its plan and location.

Some little talk was had concerning the trees upon the public streets that had been injured or damaged by the electric wires. The chairman of the executive committee said he would give his attention to the matter. It was voted that the executive committee confer with the selectmen for the purpose of securing more fireboxes.

It was also voted that means be taken to secure a second horse for the hose wagon.

On motion it was voted that the Executive committee be instructed to confer with the selectmen in regard to lighting the Dundee road. It was further voted that the selectmen be requested to place signs on all the streets of the Heights, which are not already supplied with the same. It was voted that the executive committee confer with the Boston & Maine railroad, in relation to the proper grading of the grounds between Park avenue and the depot.

It was also voted that the executive committee confer with the selectmen concerning a suitable crossing at Inwood crossing of Boston elevated tracks at foot of Park avenue. There was other business transacted at the meeting on Monday evening, all of which had to do with the upbuilding of Arlington Heights. As we have already said, the members of the Arlington Heights Association are live men, and their organization means continuous work for the good of their locality.

Mr. Harry W. Jones, of Cambridge, who has recently purchased Mr. McDonald's house on the corner of Westmoreland street and Westminster avenue, is now with his family occupying the same.

Mr. Geo. W. Kenty is building a house on Mass. avenue, next to the Baptist church, for Mr. George Teele's own occupancy. The house is to be a model one with all the latest of modern conveniences and will contain ten rooms. Mr. Teele will rent the half of the house he now occupies.

Mr. and Mrs. David T. Dale are occupying their beautiful new home on Medford street.

Two immense drive wheels passed through the town Wednesday morning and considerable interest was manifested by many of the town's people as to where they were going. The wheels are to be used as drive wheels on a double expansion engine at the Natick Electric Light Co's works.

Mr. Adelbert Crane, of Charlestown, N. H., has been a guest of Mrs. M. E. Wetherbee, this past week.

Mr. Florentine Schuetzer, Sr., father of Mr. F. Schuetzer of the heights, celebrates his 80th birthday the 27th of this month. It is seldom we see so youthful and energetic a gentleman at such an advanced age. May he be spared many years yet to cheer the hearts of his children and grandchildren.

Mrs. Bean of Ogdenburg, N. Y., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Dow of 47 Claremont avenue.

There was a large delegation of ladies from the heights at the meeting of the W. R. C. Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Florentine Schuetzer, corner of Appleton street and Claremont avenue, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage on Thursday evening. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Cahill, Chelsea; Mr. and Mrs. John Cahill, Jr., Everett; Mr. and Mrs. Lauble, Mr. Herrman, Mr. and Mrs. John Schuetzer, Jr., Mrs. John Schuetzer, Mr. Herman Schuetzer, Mr. Benjamin Schuetzer, Roxbury; Mr. Florentine Schuetzer, Cambridge; Mrs. Jacobson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kendall, Mrs. Kohler and family, Arlington Heights, Mrs. and Miss Kirsch, Arlington, Mr. Wendell Schuetzer, Springfield; Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Roslindale; Mr. and Mrs. Beering and family, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Schaff and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Senger, Roxbury.

bury; Mr. and Mrs. Day, Leslie Day, Mr. and Mrs. Newman, Miss Carr, Cambridge; Mr. and Mrs. Mais, Miss Mais, Jamaica Plain; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nicoll, Crescent Hill; Miss. Rounds, Attleboro; Mr. Cashman, vocalist, Maplewood. The orchestra furnishing music for the occasion was from Maplewood. Several others were present, in all about 65. Dinner was served, the tables being spread in the spacious parlors, N. J. Hardy being caterer. The dinner was one of the best. Mr. and Mrs. Schuetzer some very elegant present in silverware and cut glass.

The prayer meeting of the Baptist church was held last evening at the at Mrs. Kings on Westminster avenue Mr. Finley being the leader.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Drew of Westmoreland avenue are visiting friends in Vermont and N. H.

The Sunshine Club met on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Albert Kimball on Central street.

Mrs. Pick from Cape Ann is visiting her son, Mr. Edwin D. Pick.

Mr. George H. Jones of Bedford, Quebec, is a guest of his son, Mr. B. G. Jones at his home on Lowell street.

Mr. G. L. Stevens has purchased land adjoining his residence.

Mr. Guy E. Dame is to remove his business to North Somerville, much to the regret of our people. We wish him success.

Mrs. R. S. Otis of Lynn and Mrs. G. L. Webber of Waltham have been visiting at Mrs. Streeter, 49 Claremont ave.

Mr. Albert Brown of Boston called on friends on Claremont avenue last Sunday.

Usual services of the Arlington Heights Baptist church will be held in Crescent Hall tomorrow. Sunday school at 2:15, preaching at three, even-service at 7:30. All are welcome. Strangers especially invited.

Mrs. Mixter, after a five weeks' delightful visit in Gilmanton, N. H., returned home again 184 Westminster ave. Mrs. Mixter, with friends, climbed Mt. Belnap from the tip top of which nearly all the Granite state can be seen and a good portion of Mass. While in Gilmanton Mrs. Mixter attended an old-fashioned husking bee given by Gen. Cogswell. The "red ears" were found in abundance. Mrs. Mixter reports a most enjoyable outing.

Mrs. George Hall of Tanager street has her aunt, Miss Boswell of Cambridge visiting her.

Miss Abbott, sister of Mrs. Parsons, left Boston last Sunday to commence her concert tour in Canada and the western states. She expects to return on Christmas day.

William Wilder of Mechas, Me., was a guest last Wednesday of his brother-in-law, Mr. J. H. Colpret of Crescent Hill avenue.

The members of the Park avenue church Y. P. S. C. E., had a treat furnished by their social committee last Thursday evening. It was a co-web party. Miss Margaret Henderson having in charge. It proved one of the best socials he d. A large number attended, making it a decidedly enjoyable affair.

The regular services of the Park Avenue Congregational church will be held tomorrow. Morning service at 10:45 with sermon by the pastor. Sabbath school and Bible class at noon. Junior C. E. at 4. At 6:30 Y. P. S. C. E. At 7:50 p. m. short praise and testimony meeting. A welcome to all.

The Y. P. C. E. meeting held last Sunday evening in Park avenue church was of a deeply interesting character. Miss A. B. Jones of Falmouth, Mass., the founder and promoter of floating hospital societies gave a most inspiring address and account of her work. At the close a liberal contribution was taken and given Miss Jones.

Unexpected.

One of the district school trustees was a crank on the subject of fire, and when he called round with the examining board he always confined his remarks to a question addressed to the pupils as to what they would do in case the building should catch fire.

The teacher was acquainted with his hobby, so she prompted her scholars as to the answers they should give when he rose to propound his accustomed inquiry. When the board called, however, this particular trustee, perhaps from a desire to emulate his associates in their addresses, rose and said:

"You boys and girls have paid such attention to Mr. Jones' remarks, I wonder what you would do, now, if I were to make you a little speech?"

Quick as thought a hundred voices piped in unison:

"Form a line and march down stairs."—London Answers.

So Very Accommodating.

Scene—A swell restaurant (say, Simpson's). Walter presents bill to swell, who has been dining both "wisely and well."

Swell—Walter, just tell Mr. Simpson I should like a word with him. Ah, how do you do, Mr. Simpson? Some 12 months ago I dined here, but, unfortunately, was unable to pay. You made a few rather powerful remarks and then very properly kicked me down stairs.

Mr. Simpson—Ah, I do remember the matter, now you mention it. But, never mind, sir—never mind. Let bygones be bygones.

Swell—Just so, sir. I have now to compliment you upon the charming dinner I have just enjoyed. The wine was really excellent, but I am sorry to say—or that is, I regret—or well, the fact is (lifting his countenance accommodatingly) I must trouble you again, Mr. Simpson.

A Growsome Superstition.

A rumor got about in a village in Russia, not far from the German frontier, that the corpse of a woman who had recently been buried had turned in the coffin. Everybody in the village not only believed the rumor, but ascribed the prevailing drought as the cause. A village council was held, and it was decided that the husband of the woman should have the coffin opened and the body replaced in its original position. The husband, however, promptly refused, and nothing could persuade him to yield to the unanimous wish of his fellow villagers, whereupon the latter took the matter in their own hands and went to the churchyard to dig up and open the coffin. To their great surprise the body lay in its original position. Their astonishment was not lessened when the legal authorities appeared on the scene and opened an inquiry, with a view of imposing punishment for the desecration of the grave.

The whole neighborhood was possessed with the idea that newly buried persons were to blame for the prevalence of the dry weather, for in another village, not far off, a grave was opened and the coffin unscrewed to pour water on the corpse. The benighted peasants of this village were of the opinion that this was the best way to induce the clerk of the weather to supply them with much needed rain.

A Sharp Swindler?

A fashionable young lady not long ago drove up in a handsome carriage to a private lunatic asylum, situated a few miles from Paris, and requested to see the proprietor. Her wish being acceded to, she informed the doctor that she desired to place her husband under his care to see if a cruel mania, under which he labored—viz, "that he had lost a large quantity of jewels"—could not be removed.

After some hesitation the doctor consented, and the lady drove away, directly to a jeweler's in Paris and selected jewels to the value of several thousand francs and requested one of the shopmen to go with her in her carriage to procure the money for the goods she had taken. She drove with him to the asylum, and, arriving there, he was shown into a room.

The lady then sought the doctor, told him of the arrival of her husband, and getting into her carriage again drove away. The rest may be imagined, but the poor fellow was confined several days before it was found they both had been "sold." The lady was never heard of after.

Knew His Time.

"A ragged boy about 10 years old," says a correspondent of the Detroit Free Press, "sat on the fence in front of an Arkansas cabin, and just as I came up his mother came to the door and called 'Moses' in a loud voice. The boy did not look around, and after a minute she called 'Abraham.' He made no move, and I was asking him how far it was to Greenville when she put out her head and called 'Luke.' He did not appear to hear and had answered me that it was seven miles when the mother raised her voice still higher and shouted 'Mark.'

"Your mother is calling you," I said, as he paid no attention.

"No, not me," he replied.

"But who, then?"

"My brothers over in the woods. She's called for Moses, Abraham, Luke and Mark. She'll call for Phileas, Jeremiah, J. J. and Abel, and if they don't come she'll yell out for Ananias, and that'll mean me, and I'll jump."

Persians Love Mirrors.

Persia is "the ideal place for a looking glass peddler to live and move and have his trade, for the Persians are as fond of the shiny reflectors as are savages of beads. Every year immense numbers of mirrors of all sorts and kinds are shipped into the country of the shah. Germany, France and Belgium furnish most of the supply. In addition to having a fondness for seeing themselves as looking glasses show them the Persians know no more pleasing parlor decorations than brilliant mirrors in gilt frames. Some of the Persian drawing rooms are so completely hemmed in by great pier glasses that visitors often become bewildered and try to walk through the glasses down the long aisle that seems to stretch in front. So bumped noses, knees and toes are not uncommon in that land of oriental splendor and mystery.

Settled It.

He (a suitor)—Grammarians have never been quite sure of the proper distinction between "I shall" and "I will," but to my mind there is no difficulty.

She—I don't quite know the distinction myself.

He (thinking he sees his opportunity)—Well, take the question, "Will you marry me?" Supposing I ask you, your reply would be not "I will," but—

She (emphatically)—I won't!—Judy.

To Make the Eyes Bright.

The simple plan of bathing the eyes with cold water every night at bedtime and the first thing on getting up in the morning will make the eyes both clear and bright. The application of cold water causes the blood in the numerous little blood vessels which surround the eyes to circulate freely, and in consequence the eyes will become stronger and brighter.

Tea Drinking.

Tea drinking was regarded as one of the feminine vices of a hundred years ago. The Female Spectator of that period observes: "The tea table costs more to support than would maintain two children at nurse. It is the utter destruction of all economy, the bane of good housewifery and the source of idleness."

Rather be sweet in spirit than strong in muscle.

Black Ink as a Face Wash.

A British traveler in Africa, weary and exhausted, was received hospitably one evening in the kraal of a Hotentot prince. Early next morning he was about to write down the events of the previous weeks when he perceived, to his dismay, that the ink in his traveling case was dried up. With a sigh of disappointment, he was packing up his writing materials when his eye fell on a glass vessel standing on a bamboo shelf, which, on closer inspection, proved to be a genuine ink pot nearly full to the brim.

Delighted at the discovery, he sat down and worked away at his diary. Suddenly he was disturbed in his occupation by a young negress, who, springing toward him, snatched the ink pot from the table in passionate haste.

Her agonizing screams soon attracted the other members of the family, and the unsuspecting stranger was soon made aware that he had committed the heinous offense of laying sacrilegious hands on the carefully guarded provision of ink which the rich aunt of the monarch had bought from a European trader as a toilet preparation for improving the complexion.

The explorer was forthwith arrested and sentenced to death, and the edict would have been put into execution had not a British man-of-war arrived in the bay. The captain, learning of his countryman's exploit, promptly intervened and appeared the irate royal house by a gift of half a pint of black ink.

The Safest Part of a Train.

A party of travelers in a train were talking over their traveling experience and the danger of accidents, and finally the question arose as to the safest part of the train. Failing to settle the question among themselves, they called on the guard, and one of them said to him:

"Guard, we have been discussing the matter of the safest part of the train and want to know your opinion."

"Want to know the safest part, eh?" replied the guard.

"Yes, that's it."

"Well," continued the guard, "I've been on the line for 15 years and have been turned over embankments, 'busted' up in tunnels, dumped off of bridges, telescoped in collisions, blown off the line by cyclones, run into open switches and had other pleasant incidental diversions of a kindred nature, and I should say, gentlemen, that the safest part of the train was that part which happened to be in the works for repairs at the time of the accident."—London Telegraph.

He Dodged the Question.

The story is told in The Church Review of a certain vicar near Birmingham who had an amusing passage at arms with his diocesan. It seems that he had been in the habit of issuing a private manual of devotions in the church without the bishop's consent. On the front cover, he it said, was the notice, in bold type: "Not to be taken away. The property of the vicar."

By some means or another a copy of the little book found its way to the palace, and a few days after the vicar received a somewhat tartly worded communication from the diocesan, asking when his lordship had given permission for the use of the manual.

"My dear lord bishop," wrote the vicar, "the same week that your lordship received the manual, which, on looking at the cover, you will see is my property, my vestry clock also disappeared. If you will kindly send me the name of the person who stole my manual it might lead to the apprehension of the person who stole my vestry clock."

A Soapless Country.

In spite of British rule, India is still virtually a soapless country. Throughout the villages of Hindustan soap is indeed regarded as a natural curiosity, and it is rarely, if ever, kept in stock by the native shopkeeper. In the towns it is now sold to a certain extent, but how small this is may be gathered from the fact that the total yearly consumption of soap in India is about 100,000 hundredweight—that is to say, every 2,500 persons use on an average only 112 pounds of soap among them, or, in other words, considerably less than an ounce is the average consumption a person.

Took It to Herself.

Stubb—I made an awful blunder last night.

Penn—What was it?

Stubb—Why, Tommy called me about midnight and asked what the noise was down stairs. I told him it was the old cat.

Penn—Was it?

Stubb—No; it was my wife looking for water. It took me until morning trying to convince her that I was alluding to the old cat with black fur and nine lives.—Chicago News.

Titles in Spain.

In Spain you can become a nobleman by marrying a duchess, a marchioness or a countess. The man who marries a lady bearing one of those designations immediately becomes invested with the same rank. You may obtain nobility without money by these means, it is true, but, generally speaking, you will find it a hard task to secure a titled wife unless you are well provided with cash.

Letters in Spain.

A German correspondent in Spain writes that unless letters to or from that country are registered not one in five reaches its destination, and that unless the postmen, who have no salary, get at least a cent for each letter delivered by them they boycott those who refuse to pay and keep their letters.

The mother's heart is the child's schoolroom. Any feeling that takes a man away from his home is a traitor to the household.—Weekly Bonquet.
